

November Tip of the Month

We talk all the time about securing furniture, building an emergency kit, or just being prepared. Some of you have not seen the tools and supplies that we are talking about. Since we do not endorse any particular brand name or company, we won't recommend. But here are some examples of the products available online or at your local hardware store!

Museum putty, gel or wax can help hold your collectibles and valuables in place during shaking.

Secure Kits are available to bolt/brace your bookcases and other furniture. Some look like this.

Disaster Kits like this one designed for a Zombie Attack ☺ all contain basic survival items like food, water and other tools.

TV straps are not only good for earthquake preparedness but also for keeping your television from tipping over on kids or animals.

Check our website for streaming videos showing you how to secure a water heater, bookcases, wall hangings, or cabinets. Tools, directions, and finding a wall stud, all in 5 minutes or less are all there.
